Winterthur, DE February 13, 2018—Winterthur Point-to-Point, the Brandywine Valley's signature springtime event, celebrates its ruby anniversary this year with a day full of championship horse racing, a spectacular antique carriage parade, tailgate picnics, people watching, and other activities.

The first Point-to-Point races at Winterthur took place on May 6, 1979. Searching for a way to use the nearly 1,000 acres of the estate, the trustees decided to present a day of steeplechase racing. Winterthur tractors cut a course through a former cow pasture, and the event was a tremendous success. Reports on attendance varied but the crowd, mostly horsemen and their families and friends dressed in rugged country gear (think barn jackets and riding boots), enjoyed good weather and great racing.

Today, Point-to-Point is a day of fun for all ages, including activities such as stick horse races for children, a parade of River Hills foxhounds, canine capers, and a display of Rolls-Royce and Bentley cars. A highlight of the day is the George A. "Frolic" Weymouth Carriage Parade, named in honor of the late artist and founder of the Brandywine Conservancy &

Museum of Art in Chadds Ford, Pa., and the nation's largest procession of antique horse-drawn carriages, takes place at 1 p.m. (weather permitting).

"Point-to-Point is truly a family tradition, both for spectators and participants," said Jill S. Abbott, Race Director. "Today's owners, trainers, and riders are the children and grandchildren of the 1979 participants, while many of today's attendees first attended as children."

Post time for the Isabella du Pont Sharp Memorial, a maiden timber race with a $15,000 purse, is at 2 p.m. The Winterthur Bowl, an open timber race with an anniversary purse of $40,000, takes place at 2:30 p.m. Post time for the Vicmead Plate, an amateur highweight timber race with a $15,000 purse, is at 3 p.m. The steeplechase races are run on a course of approximately 3 1/8 miles, with a total of eight fences that are jumped 17 times. The Middletown Cup, a flat race, begins at 3:30 p.m. Trophies for the races are adapted from originals in the Winterthur collection. The Alison Hershbell Pony Races, run in two heats, for small and for large ponies, start at noon.

Gates open at 11:30 a.m. Admission must be purchased in advance. No sales race day and no will call.
